Why should you attend?

Persons of malicious intent continually seek to sophisticate and improve their methods of wrongdoing, including bribery. In addition, the increasingly complex nature of modern-day enterprises may sometimes put well-intentioned people into high-pressure situations that increase the risk of bribery-related misconduct.

ISO 37001 provides a structured methodology for organizations to prevent, detect, and address bribery through the implementation of an anti-bribery management system (ABMS). As organizations increasingly recognize the value of this standard, there is a growing need for professionals who understand its principles, requirements, and application.

This training course aims to help participants understand the fundamental concepts of anti-bribery management and the requirements of ISO 37001. It provides a solid foundation for individuals who wish to support the implementation, maintenance, or improvement of an ABMS within an organization.

After attending the eLearning training course, you can take the exam. If you successfully pass, you can apply for a "PECB Certified ISO 37001 Foundation" credential, which demonstrates your understanding of the basic concepts, principles, and requirements of an anti-bribery management system based on ISO 37001.
